Reviewer General Comments and Suggestions (mandatory written feedback):

The design project and construction is really interesting example of climate design that considers local architecture principles and context, reinterpreted through a contemporary language. Nevertheless, the link to the main conference objectives is totally missing and not mentioned; hence, the paper is not really pertinent to the conference, because it does not offer a contribution to the discussion on the conference topics. The paper is rather a presentation of a design project, and does not offer a critical position on the concepts of the conference. Moreover, it does not introduce the state-of-the-art (similar projects, literature).

Reviewer General Comments and Suggestions (mandatory written feedback):

The design described in this abstract sounds wonderful, but the abstract describes a design project, and comes across as a project presentation, not a research paper. No mention is made in the abstract of anything related to design communication, let alone anything related to the specific conference themes.
